

A GRAND DISTRIBUTION OF BEAUTIFUL BRONZE CLOCKS!

A Bronze Clock Free.

Does your old clock keep good time? Have you enough time-pieces in your house? Is the clock on your best room mantle as ornamental as you would like? Don't you have constant use for a good alarm clock? THE TIMES has made arrangements with one of the largest clock manufactories in the United States to buy at greatly reduced rates a large amount of their surplus stock, and with the effort of increasing circulation THE TIMES is going to as premiums, the only condition being that each person who gets a clock must subscribe to THE TIMES. It is the desire of THE TIMES to arrange the plan of distribution so that old subscribers may have an equal showing with the new subscribers; but no clocks will be sold and positively none will be sent out unless each order contains at least the name of one new subscriber, for, as stated above, THE TIMES is frank to say that it is giving away these beautiful clocks simply to increase its circulation, and with that end in view it is making big sacrifices and newspaper readers will reap the benefits. These clocks are no toys; they are beautiful ornaments, made of bronze, and are excellent timepieces.

Value $5.00.
The Sunflower Clock, size 17 1-2 inches high, given for one subscriber and $1.25, or two subscribers and $1.25, or three subscribers and $1, or for seven subscribers THE TIMES will make you a present of it.

How to Get a Clock.

First, subscribe to THE TWICE-A-WEEK TIMES. Second, induce one or more friends to subscribe. As an example, take the dog clock. It is easily worth $3. Send one new subscriber (your own subscription if you are not already a subscriber, or a full year's renewal if you are) and $1 to pay for the paper and 75c to pay for the clock. Thus for $1.75 you will get the best twice-a-week paper in Virginia and a beautiful bronze clock that will keep good time. Or THE TIMES will send you the clock for 50c and two new subscribers or for 25c and three new subscribers; or for four new subscribers we will make you a present of the clock. Each subscription, of course, must be accompanied by $1; thus if you send your own name and induce three of your friends to join you you get the clock free. The same rule applies to all the other clocks shown on this page, except that some of them cost more money and it takes a little more effort to get them.

The Guarantee.

If, after you have received your clock, it does not come fully up to your expectations, The Times Company guarantees to return your money.

The Twice-a-Week Times.

The Twice-a-Week Times is in reality a semi-weekly, as it is issued in two parts—eight pages every Monday and six or eight pages every Thursday. The paper has lately been greatly improved and is now by all odds the best weekly in the South. It is no rehash of the daily, but is carefully edited and prepared, profusely illustrated, and contains all the news of Richmond, Virginia, and the country at large.

The Twice-a-Week Times prints more news and more pictures to the square inch than any paper in the South.

The motto of The Times is "First the news; all the news," and there is no paper in the South that covers the news field more thoroughly. The Times makes a specialty of Virginia news and Virginia markets.

True Illustrations.

The illustrations on this page are excellent reproductions, drawn directly from the clocks, and are true in every detail. The back of none of the clocks, however, are finished ornamentally, the casting being left rough and open behind, but as the clocks are intended to sit on a mantel against the wall this does not detract from their value in the least. When seen from front or either side they appear just as shown in these illustrations. This statement is made so as to avoid all possible chance of disappointment, as some might imagine that the clocks were finished as handsomely behind as they are in front. In fact, clocks are seldom or never finished ornamentally behind.

Features Of the Times.

One of the most attractive features of the Twice-a-Week Times during the coming year will be its illustrations. The Times has a complete art department, and the faces of many prominent people will appear in its pages. Important current events will also be illustrated. But perhaps the strongest feature of the paper is thorough Virginia and North Carolina news service. The Times has the largest and most competent staff of special correspondents of any paper in the State. The Times prints all the news, and its greatest effort is to keep its political news absolutely unbiased.
